Graduates They Must Improve Minds.

Annapolis, June 2.—Secretary Daniels

the coolesis in Missinsippi, Missouri equipped and prepared always for any smergency. The secretary told the graduates they were country into the navy at the period of its largest expansion, its highest efficiency and when lessons from Europe point directly to the need of trained man in war when human life is to be spared from the killing of men unprepared and unskilled in the science of militarism.

Courage is Common.

"We have learned as never before during the yeasent world war," the secretary salu, "that courage on the field of hattle is the communest as well as the most glorious, attribute of our humanity. The man who, in particular outbursts, hurries to volunteer on land or sea, often fails to appreciate the fact that his service lacks the highest value unless he is trained in arms. The pathon of human lives sacrificed in war because of unreadiness is the saddest lesson taught by the European war. It is a lesson which has served to awaken America to the need of training men."

The pathos of human lives sacrificed in war because of unreadness is the saddest lesson taught by the European war. It is a lesson which has served to awaken America to the need of training men."

The training that produces skill and efficiency, said the secretary, should be encouraged among naval officers after they are graduated if the navy is to profit by their service.

"Another lesson of the war and one needed in America," he continued, "is that industrial preparedness, must galand in hand with building battle cruisers and other naval craft and securing more trained officers and men. Secretary Daniels paid high tributs to the naval consulting board which he said, already had undertaken the pioneer work of industrial preparedness in the United States and soon would provide the army and envy with this essential feature.

"I counsel you," he continued, "early to marry yourself to a special branch of the service, for an ounce of experimowings in the days that are before you will be worth a pound of general information."

The graduates also were reminded that "the old things are passing away.

fore you will be worth a pound of general information."

The graduates also were reminded that the old things are reasing away, and new ones must be devised." The responsibility of previding weapons and strategy to meet the unrovealed possibilities of certain instruments of war, he said in conclusion, would develve upon them.

youngsters here or at West Foint have forgotten themselves, and have done something that they ought not to do and were about to be disciplined, perhaps severely, for it. I have been appealed to by their friends to excuse them from the penalty. Knowing that I have spent most of my life at a college they commonly say to me. You know college boys. You know what they are. They are heedless youngsters very aften and they ought not to be held up to the same standards of responsibility that older men must submit to:

spensibility that older need mit to:

"And I have always replied: 'Yes, I know college boys, but while these youngsters are conege boys, they are something more. They are officers of the United States.'

youngstors are conege boys, they are something more. They are officers of the United States.

'Do you not see the difference? You cannot induige yourselves in weakness, gentlemen. You cannot forget your duty for a mement, because there might come a time when that weak spot in you should affect you in the midst of a great engagement and then the whole history of the world might be changed by what you did not do or did wrong. 'So that the personal feeling I have for you is this: We are all bound together, I for the time being and you permanently, under a special obligation, the most solemn that the mind can conceive.

Things Worth Walle Are Hard.
The fortunes of a nation are confided to us. Now that ought not to depress a man. Sometimes I think that nothing is worth while that is not hard. You do not improve your musued by doing the easy things; you improve it by doing the hard things, and you get your zest by doing at hing that is difficult, not a thing that is concerned, have something interest of an impediation of the faculties. Therefore, I congratulate you that you are going to live your lives under the most stimulating comgulation that any man can feel, the sense, not of private duty merely, but of public duty also.

"I want you to know gentlemen, if it is any satisfaction to you, that I shall personally follow your career's in the days that are ahead of you with real personal interest. I wish your Godspeed and romind you that yours in the days that are ahead of you with the days that are ahead of you with real personal interest. Natural Vitalitas Will Be Found Wonderfully Beneficial for Many Ills.

As a morning draught, fifteen minutes before breakfast, a teaspoonful of liquid Vitalitas in a half giass of hot water has tonic and curative effects different from any other medical product. There is nothing else in Nature like it and no man-made medicine is to be compared to it. It is pleasant and you know when you take it that it will benefit you. Vitalitas is usually taken in cold water after meals and at bed time, but many find it more agreeable and its effects more pronounced, particularly as a haveful to be an abseltating hot water and taking it before meals, at least before breakfast. Either way the results are wonderfully beneficial for those who suffer with indigestion, sour clomach, biliousness, rheumatism, liver, kidney or blood ills.

Vitalitas is a heavy golden liquid extracted from an earth substance that is rich in chemical properties and forces that are essential to life and health. Multitudes who have failed to find relief in ordinary medicines are healted and cured by Vitalitas. It is all good and pleasant to take.
